Arrived Sept. 19th Gemma, H M S Slaney and Watchful, 21st Maria Elizabeth, and 25th Salamander. Departed—Sept 16th Delhi, and 23rd Duck. Vessels off Taku—Earl of Chester, L'Oriental. Cito; and Martha & Emily for Newchwang.

The Cadiz was on the Bar four hours, going down on the morning of the 5th inst.

Per Jeddo.—On the 5th Sept. at 8.45 got on shore in 12 feet water west end of Fitzroy Island bearing E. ½ S. 30th, got off the ground and anchored in 4 fathoms water, after having discharged nearly all the cargo and thrown overboard 100 tons of Ballast and all the Coal. Oct 1st, Scotland and another paddle-wheel steamer passed bound up. On the 4th, Niemen passed. 5th, weighed and proceeded down, passed Fernandez E. end of Fitzroy Island. Saw the Danish Brig Chico Anchored off Ningo-Town. 6th, passed Nankin and a brigantine at anchor near Silver Island. 7th, passed an American barque at anchor abreast of the Manila. Saw no beacon on the Waterman Bank.

Per Surprise.—Left Hankow October 6th, at 8 A.M., strong winds up the river, thick and rainy weather and a bad sea, two Junks in tow. Left Cosmopolite in port, Scotland anchored off lower part of the town, the eve of the 5th was getting under weigh to go into the Han when we passed her. 7th, at 9 A.M., passed the Niemen off Hunter Island, 20 miles above Kiewkiang, all sail set, having fresh winds up the river; at 10 A.M., passed the Fernandez, 10 miles above Kiukiang; at 2 P.M., left Kiukiang; at 5.33 P.M. passed an English lorcha, with a red signal a dark cross in it 15 miles below little Orphan; at 6 P.M., off Dove Point passed a full-rigged Danish brig, all sail set, strong winds up the river. 8th, at 12 M., passed an English lorcha, with green signal, with a yellow Maltese cross, off Hen point. At 2 P.M., head of Wild Boar Reach passed an English lorcha with no signal in company with a French Ningpo boat, with a blue, white, and red swallow-tail signal set. 9th, at 10 A.M., passed Wuhoo, hark Nimrod at anchor there, at 3.30 at Nankin, an English topsail schooner passed coming to an anchor as we passed. 10th, at 7 A.M., at Chinkiang; at 1 P.M., off Starling Island, passed hark L. E. Ashby and schooner Wanderer. 11th, at 9 A.M., passed the Fire Dart off Centaur Shoal, also saw a brig bound down channel North of Aetwon Bank; off Bush Island Shoal saw the Pluto and May Queen.

THE NORTH-CHINA BRANCH OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY

Will hold its next Annual Meeting, on Tuesday next, 8 o'clock P.M the 15th instant, in the Rooms of the Shanghai Library.

THE London mail of 26th August, due in Hongkong on the 8th and here on the 15th inst. Last year it arrived on the 14th per Aden.

THE P. & O. Co.'s steamer with the Mail for Europe is appointed to leave on Thursday morning, the 24th instant.

THE energy displayed at the present time by the Civil and Military Authorities, in providing for the better protection of the Foreign and peaceable Chinese residents in this Settlement—from lawless bands without, and pence-breakers within its bounds—is deserving of public approbation. Our small but efficient battery of Artillery with seventy-two English Artillerymen and officers, are to be removed forthwith from the Stone Bridge Joss-house barrack to a central part of this division of Shanghai, commonly called the English Settlement. At the American division an increase to the police force of twenty men, armed with Enfield rifles and swords, will shortly be stationed; while the Western boundary, from the Yang-king-pang to the Soochow Creek, will be defended by gates opening into the principal thoroughfares, where twenty armed policemen will be stationed, with about double their number of picked Chinamen as gatekeepers. These added to the central police force, located at the Municipal Council Station, numbering twenty-seven men, three sergeants, and one inspector, together with the battalion of the 26th Regt. Bengal N.I., six hundred and fifty strong, stationed at the Ningpo Joss-house—form a force in round numbers, of nearly eight hundred regulars and men trained to arms under the British flag. What the exact number of the French military and police forces across the Yang-king-pang and at Sik-n-way is, we do not know; but they may be put down at 600 effective troops, and 15 policemen; augmenting the paid land forces of the Allies to 1,408 men of all arms. Last—though not least—the resident Foreign civilians of every nation, could muster, in all probability, five hundred gentlemen, the majority armed with revolvers and rifles, who would protect their hearths and homes to the death; and, if necessary, give a good account of the enemy in the field.

Such being the strength of our land forces and the state of our defences on shore, let us see what we have afloat. Our Shipping List shows that there are at present seven British men-of-war in harbour and at Woosung, viz:—H. M.'s steamer Atta'ante, no available men; the Bouncer (95) o.n., 50 n. p., 35 men; the Centaur, disp.-boat, 190 men; Flamer (93), 35 men; Ringdove, st.-sloop, 90 men; Scout, sc.-st.-corv., 270 men; Starling, (84) o.n., manned from Scout. The French naval squadron consists of H. I. M. str. Confucius, say 40 men; the Forte, frigate, 350 men; str. Hongkong, 80 men; str. Meteor, 70 men. There are four Russian ships of war also, which may be presumed to assist us in the hour of danger, should it come: these are—H. R. I. M. gun-bt. Nyaisnick, say 40 men; gun-bt. Opritchnick, 40 men; Svetlana, frigate, 500 men; and one Portuguese corvette the Don João I., 237 men. Making a total of 1,737 sailors and marines. Of course this number is not expected to land from the combined naval squadron in harbour; still, we think they could spare four or five hundred marines and blue jackets to form a naval brigade. Our estimate of the effective strength of each vessel is also approximate, but we have reason to believe that we are rather under than over the mark.

We now come to the merchant fleet of vessels lying in the river and at Woosung, which, at the low average of one hundred barques and ships, allowing a crew of fifteen to each, or a total of 1,500 men could, under pressing circumstances, land five hundred men for the defence of the Settlement. Thus we have a total of nearly 4,145 armed and fighting men—soldiers, sailors, marines, and civilians. In placing before our local readers this approximate estimate of the strength and condition of our Defences, we trust that it will have the effect of allaying the fears of those ladies and their families, who may have felt some alarm during the recent outbreak at Hong-kew, and the rumours of the Rebels fighting with the Imperialists in the vicinity of Shanghai.

At the same time, while we wish to instil confidence into every person here, as to the general state of our strength and means of protection to life and property, it is our duty to expose any vulnerable point, that it might be strengthened or guarded from attack, or where a cunning foe could take us at a vantage. In this respect the Foreign Shipping is least protected of any other property in Shanghai. From the list in our Daily News, it will be seen that no less than 122 vessels are at anchor here and at Woosung, including the five receiving ships. Now, suppose that the Rebels came down the river in boats seized by them above the city, and that with "stink pots" or other inflammable matter, they set fire to that mass of junks which lies abreast of the city, cutting them adrift at strong ebb tide, these would form a fleet of fire-ships capable of destroying the greater portion of the foreign vessels in harbour; thereby preventing succour from their crews to the inhabitants on shore, or being made, as they are intended to be, a refuge for females and children, should the Settlement be attacked.

Some people may "pooh! pooh!" this possible contingency, and smile doubtingly at those who tell them to be upon their guard against a pack of rogues and vagabonds. Precisely so; the fact of their belonging to the lowest revolutionary scum of a hostile, cunning, sanguinary race is the very reason why we should adopt the appropriate motto of our French Allies, "Gardez-vous." We should not despise the power of any creature—man or beast—that can do us harm, nor any agency, however insignificant, that leads to the destruction of life and property. Of the former, ruffians and fools—who have all to gain and nothing to lose—are the most dangerous; and of the latter, fire is the most destructive. One little spark in the hands of an incendiary or a madman, may cause the conflagration of a city. When Martin, the brother to the great Scriptural painter of that name, hinted of letting him see an earthly study for his Pandemoniac genius, people laughed at the idea. Nevertheless, he set fire to York Minster, and shewed that he had a "method in his madness." Everybody deplored the destruction of England's most beautiful Gothic structure, and mentioned over the smoking ruins, as if it were the funeral pile of a nation's greatness.

Fire, when consuming habitations on land is fearful enough to the sufferers, but on board ship it is still more so—the very word, as we write it, makes us shudder, for we have experienced the horrors of a "Ship on fire," whilst at anchor in a harbour amongst a fleet of shipping. The Chinese, it is well known, are practically fire worshippers—if they have any creed at all, it consists in a mythology of crackers—weak in its good intent, but strong for evil purposes. It would be wise therefore that some precautionary measure should be taken to protect our shipping, with the numerous lives and valuable cargoes on board. A chain boom properly buoyed up could be thrown across the river, just above the Foreign shipping, at a small cost; so that, in the event of the junks being set on fire, these might be consumed, or sink at their moorings. As this, however, trenches upon the engineering skill of our naval officers, we shall leave the consideration of the question to them, and if they consider it practicable and necessary, or otherwise, we hope to hear from them on the subject.

So much has been written upon the duties of the Press in regard to its obligations to the Public, that we refrain from travelling over ground that every director of a public journal is so well acquainted with. China, with all its boasted antiquity, is, to us at least, but an infant state. In regard to itself, it would appear to be in its second childhood; but it is in reference to the late insincere and almost suicidal acts of this impotent, but still crafty and mischievous people, that our pen is now directed.

We publish this week a letter, under date of the 26th August, from the Chairman of the British Chamber of Commerce here to H. M.'s Minister at Pekin, on the subject of the general policy of the Chinese Government in reference to Foreign trade, as evidenced by its fiscal regulations in its Customs department; together with Mr. Bruce's reply thereto.

We confess that we might fain have left the former document accompanied by the letter to Lord John Russell, to speak for themselves—to say, "Now, see how a plain tale shall put you down." But we should be wanting in that duty, and ignoring those obligations which we hold to be inseparable from our office, were we to remain silent spectators of the struggle. In the British Chamber of Commerce here, is represented all those important mercantile interests, that are daily extending the influence and providing for many of the wants of England's teeming population. We seek to discuss no personal, but a national subject of complaint. It is most essential then, that those interests should not be trifled nor tampered with; either to conciliate the prejudices of others or to indulge our vanity, by a display of mis-placed and unrecognised acts of generosity towards an effete but, we fear, stiff-necked generation. We have the greatest respect for our own countrymen in the main. But as an animal, he is, after all, the strangest being imaginable. In this picture we include even those of our brethren who move in the highest ranks of life. The Englishman feels that he lives under a constitution that practically, is certainly the most free and most refined in the known world—a curious piece of patchwork, the growth and manufacture of ages. Of this wonderful production of his country, that works so harmoniously at home, the Englishman is justly proud, but beyond this, oddly enough, he is proud that it produced himself; and, in his intense admiration of this tessellated piece of antiquity, proceeds at once to apply it to the wants and requirements of his neighbours, East, West, North, and South. He never for one moment pauses in his good and honest intentions to ask—"Do grapes grow on thistles," &c., or whether that portion of his creed, the Habeas Corpus Act, could live for a day in France?—would the time-honored John Doe and Richard Roe (now happily defunct) have ever flourished in Turkey? No! The strained subtleties and over-wrought refinements adapted to an almost artificial and highly polished state of society in England, is inconsiderately pronounced to be the panacea of all the ills that beset and impede the progress of the most remote families of the human race. From this fact, so well known to the silent observer, has arisen all the blunders and absurdities that have marked our intercourse and attended our footsteps in our dealings with other nations. We are not satisfied with the hopeless attempt to make our domestic garments fit the forms of Western nations, but we insist upon fixing them upon the uncouth figures of our newly acquired customers in the far regions of the East.

We refrain from tiring our readers by a recapitulation of the late Customs' impositions and infractions of their most recent Treaty obligations to us, as these have been already recorded in our columns and amply exposed by the united and prompt action of the Chamber of Commerce; but we protest most emphatically against a line of policy, which, based upon the necessity for conciliation, is certain to be misinterpreted, and consequently to lead to the undermining and, if not checked, to the ultimate destruction of our mercantile interests here.

If there be any truth in our estimate of the Chinese character, then should we treat them as we would the children we believe them to resemble. They are probably but following their natural instincts in their dealings with us, but it should be our care not merely to check but to correct their tendency to dishonesty in their reading of Treaty obligations with us. Foreign employés are selected by the Chinese Government as are told, "to introduce a more honest and better system of administration in the collection of duties." Exactly so. The Foreign residents then in China may reasonably expect that the heads of these departments, who must be thoroughly acquainted with the state of society in Europe, will add their voice to that of Mr. Hart, and urge upon the high Officials of the Chinese Government more "enlarged views on commercial matters." We trust this hint in Mr. Bruce's letter will not be lost upon those who fill these responsible, but doubtless onerous positions under the Chinese Government. We confess we do not look with great hopefulness on this task, for China has lost all the freshness and candour of youth and failed to acquire any of the nobleness of manhood. We fear that corruption hath too firm a hold on the entire body politic to hope for much better days, and that, exhausted by internal dissensions and impoverished by their own self-annihilating acts, the awful sentence has already gone forth against this blasted tree—"Cut it down."

OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE ON FOREIGN TRADE IN CHINA.

BRITISH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
SHANGHAI, 26th August, 1861.

SIR,—I have the honor of forwarding to you under this cover an Address to the Right Honorable Lord John Russell, Her Majesty Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, upon the subject of the administration of the Imperial Maritime Customs at this port and further drawing his Lordship's attention to the question generally. This Address bears the individual signatures of the members of this Chamber of Commerce, and I have respectfully to request that you will duly transmit it to the Secretary of State. I also have the honor to enclose for Your Excellency's retention a copy of the Address and of the pamphlet therein alluded to.

It becomes unnecessary for me in thus addressing you to enter at length upon the lawinnovations introduced and illegal claims preferred by the Customs Authorities, as they are fully treated of in the Address to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; but so serious are they considered to be by all interested in the trade of China and in British Mercantile Shipping, that it has been deemed expedient to lay the views of the Chamber before Her Majesty's Government in a direct Address to the Secretary of State, and in the hope, that in transmitting such communication you may see fit to accord to its views and recommendations the assistance of your approval and support.

At the same time I beg most respectfully to urge Your Excellency to remonstrate with the Government of Pekin against the illegalities, which, under its late instructions, have been attempted by the Imperial Maritime Customs, and to protest in such manner, as may seem to Your Excellency most appropriate, against those manifold exactions now imposed upon the local trade by the Imperial Authorities in direct infringement of the spirit of the Treaties which China has entered into with Foreign countries.

I cannot help remarking, that whilst it is admitted that the orders in the late instance complained of came direct from Peking, and therefore allowed of little modification by the Local Authorities of Shanghae, it is at the same time most to be regretted that they appears to be a growing tendency on the part of the Foreign Inspectors of Customs to retire from that position of counsellors and advisers of the Native Local Authorities, to which, by a sound interpretation of Treaty clauses and practical knowledge of foreign habits and customs, they may be most useful, and to subside into mere silent dependents of the Superintendents of Customs. It is not improbable that the reluctance to assume an active interposition between the Chinese Authorities on the one hand, and Foreign Merchants on the other may be the result of the irksomeness and distasteful character of such an occupation; but it is equally undoubted that if the exercise of such an influence, as that alluded to, be discontinued, one of the most effective arguments in favor of a Foreign Inspectorate, and one which has hitherto to a great extent been carried into practice, is at once removed.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your Excellency's,
Most obedient humble servant,
R. C. ANTIBOUS.
Chairman.

To
The Honorable F. W. A. Bruce, C.B.,
Her Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary, and Chief Superintendent of Trade in China.

PEKING, September 24th, 1861.

SIR,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of August 26th, enclosing an address to the Right Honorable the Lord John Russell on the subject of the administration of the Imperial Maritime Customs at Shanghai; I have forwarded the address to its destination.

I think it desirable to mention, that instructions with reference to the subjects to charge transit duties on Hankow exports and imports, and on produce viâ Ningpo to Shanghai have been forwarded to Mr. Medhurst and their substance communicated to the Imperial Government at the rate by which I shall abide. I trust these will be effectual and stop the attempts complained of, though the death of the Inspector and the political crisis consequent on that event have for a time arrested the progress of business.

With reference to the creation of a tribunal to decide cases in which penalties or confiscations are demanded for breach of the Customs House regulations, I agree in the expediency of such a tribunal, but the real difficulty lies in constituting a board which will be satisfactory and fair to both parties; and on that point I should like to be furnished with any suggestions you may be able to offer.

On the subject of "Ship's Stores," it is to be observed that many of the articles for which exemption is now claimed are inserted in the Tariff as subject to duty, from which it would appear, that they were not considered to fall properly under that description. It appears to me that in all cases where an article does not fall exclusively within the term of "Ship's Stores," and may be applied to other purposes, the utmost that can be asked for under Treaty, is that drawback should be allowed when it is bond fide put on board ship as stores. The list given by the storekeepers of Shanghai, and printed in the Report enclosed by you (which I now see for the first time), is more reasonable than that which was furnished to me some time since from Canton, which contained pretensions utterly unreconcilable with the Treaty, and I shall endeavour to save the benefit of exemptions further extended than it is by present practice.

The privilege of sharing in the coasting trade which was granted under different conditions at different ports—exemption certificates being required at some, and not at others—is not a right which according to my construction can be claimed by Treaty; nor can the Chinese Government be debarred from putting it under general regulations. If Her Majesty's Government consider that my reading of the Treaty is erroneous, an arrangement more favorable to Foreign shipping may be made; but unless I am entitled to demand it as of right, I think the question is settled on terms as favorable as at present can be obtained.

As your Address will bring these and other topics under the notice of Her Majesty's Government, it is unnecessary for me to discuss them further. You are sufficiently acquainted with the history of our intercourse with China, to know the difficulty of preserving trade from exactions in the interior as it is, from the Government's extending every nerve to provide funds for the suppression of a formidable rebellion; and when to it treaty it is debarred from the usual resources of Governments in such cases—namely, that of raising revenue by increased Customs imposition. The transit duty clause was devised to relieve the foreign trader from the arbitrary interpositions without imposing upon Her Majesty's Government the hopeless task of interfering between the Chinese Authorities and their Chinese subjects; unfortunately the general anarchy that prevails, and particularly the disturbed condition of the country in the neighbourhood of Shanghae, render at present the benefit of the arrangement almost nugatory, and greatly enhance the difficulties of any one, who has at one and the same moment to carry out the provisions of the Treaty, and to place the relations of the two countries on a permanent and more friendly footing. The same causes together with local interests agree at work in thwarting the attempts of the Foreign employés to introduce a more honest and better system of administration into the Chinese Custom House. I can speak however from personal knowledge as to the soundness of the advice given by Mr. Hart to the High Officers of the Chinese Government at Peking and to the perseverance with which he has urged upon them certain views in commercial matters.

Though I have pointed out above some of the obstacles to be encountered, I wish it to be understood that I thoroughly concur with the merchants in desiring to free trade from the trammels and impositions under which it labors and in proportion as I acquire influence with this Government, it shall be made use of to that end.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient humble servant,
FREDERICK W. A. BRUCE.

To
The CHAIRMAN of the Shanghae Chamber of Commerce.

THE REBELS IN THE VICINITY OF SHANGHAI.

The following extracts from the Daily Shipping & Commercial News report the progress of the Rebels near this Settlement during the week. The reason we opened the first notice rather strongly, was from a well-grounded apprehension that if the Imperialist troops—who we knew were out fighting the Insurgents—had met with a reverse, it was very probable that they would be followed up by the victorious enemy, sweeping down upon the city or the Settlement, burning the villages on their way, and desolating the surrounding country. In that case it would have created the utmost consternation and panic among the native inhabitants, who would have rushed pell-mell into the Settlement for safety, in such numbers, that it is possible, the European and Indian Military and civil forces, together with the Foreign residents, could not stem the torrent.

Those who were in Shanghai last year when the Rebels approached the Settlement within a mile, with hostile intent, will remember the state of anarchy and agonising distress which prevailed amongst the native population, who were driven in by the Insurgents. Aged men, wretched tottering women, children, and able-bodied coolies fled like a flock of sheep before a pack of hungry wolves. The narrow paths in the suburbs and the streets, were densely thronged by the flying multitude, all bent on saving their persons at any hazard from the clutches of the dreaded Rebels. It was a frightful illustration of the hackneyed phrase, "Save himself who can." As usual in the race for life, the strong were the winners and the weak succumbed. Women with babes, old men and crippled females, were thrown down on the roads and trampled to death; others were thrust aside into the net-work of ditches and creeks which intersect this section of what may be designated the Pays Bas of China; while the impetus given to the retreating mass was such, that many were driven headlong into the river and drowned. So great was the panic that wealthy Chinese merchants and others abandoned their chairs in the streets, leaving heavy parcels of specie silver and other valuables in them; and the captains of the merchant ships in harbour reaped a golden harvest by letting out their cabins for the shelter of Chinese females and children of the wealthier classes. Moreover, it was a rare opportunity for thieves and robber countrymen, who took every chance of plundering as they rushed past. Judging therefore from the past, it is more than probable that many spies, thieves, and ruffians would rush in upon us, and there is no saying what damage might done to life and property.

October 8th.—Various rumours have reached us during the day, of the Rebel hordes approaching the Settlement. As we have written upon previous occasions we do not wish to create alarm amongst the foreign residents on this head. But the information is of so authentic a character, that it is our duty to inform the inhabitants that these Insurgents are within a very short distance of our houses and homes. Up to the hour that we go to press, there is every truth in the rumour that a body of Rebels are fighting with Imperial troops in a westerly direction near a city named Yeh chi-tan about ten miles distant. Many people have heard the report of guns during the day, and at night villages have been seen in flames. Under these circumstances, if the Imperialist troops who have been sent by the Taoutai to drive them away, be defeated, it is just possible that the vagabonds may make a sally upon the Settlement. We are no alarmists, but such a thing may occur, and the foreign community here would look very foolish if their houses and houses were demolished, looted, or set on fire by these marauders.

Yesterday morning while it was dark, several inhabitants saw the flashes of guns in the direction of the Insurgents, and it has been reported that the Imperial General has returned to the City to report progress to the Governor of the Province, who, it is stated on Chinese Authority is now within its walls. He states that some large towns have been sacked by these vagabond hordes, and that if they came near Shanghai, it would be chiefly for plunder. To verify these Chinese rumours it is known that the reports of Artillery have been heard in the direction of Soochow Creek west of the Settlement all day,

If such be the case it is advisable that every Foreign resident should be armed, and that some rallying point should be fixed by the authorities; for, in the event of an attack, it would be a disastrous occurrence for every resident to be rushing to and fro, for the protection of his individual property. The matter should be a public one, and we trust that some measures will be taken to prevent a surprise, before the Rebels come down upon the Settlement and Shipping.

October 11th.—The following statement has been handed to us for public information from a most reliable source: "The Rebels have advanced to Chi-paou eight or nine miles by the road in a Westerly direction and not more than four or five miles in a straight line to Shanghai. They are said to be in force under a man named Yung, and are burning the villages right and left."

October 12th.—Two officers of the Bengal Native Infantry essayed yesterday afternoon to pay a visit to one of the burning villages in the neighbourhood, about six miles from the settlement. Perseverance rewarded their exertions, when they came within twenty yards of a band of these insurgents. Whilst preparing to fraternise with them in the way of a little amicable conversation, one of the Rebels in a most unsportsman like way, deliberality took a sitting shot at them. This aroused that spirit of self preservation, which had hitherto remained dormant; and finding that about twenty other armed marauders were about to outflank them, discretion became the better part of valor, and sauve qui peut, was the order of the afternoon.

But to be serious;—no one dreads a premeditated or direct attack on the settlement by these worthies less than ourselves, for we have as many scoundrels within our walls as without, and it is rumoured that measures are being adopted by those in authority, for deciding upon some plan of operations for the protection of the settlement, in the event of their attempting a raid in this direction. We learn that it is proposed that a place of rendezvous should be named for the reserved Police Force, and gentlemen volunteers to resort to, whenever alarm is given. Of this the military authorities will be informed, who will adopt such further measures in concert with the above, as in their matured judgment they shall think best.

(From the Daily Shipping & Commercial News.)

CHEFOO.

A correspondent at Chefoo, under date 29th September, states that a junk with forty people, a fugitive family, had arrived there from the neighbourhood of Lai-chu, and reported that the country for twenty miles round had been sacked and burnt; also, that some tens of thousands of people, in their anxiety and panic to get away, went to a small island in boats; that the rebels came and took away the boats, and that these people are now there without food or water. They were drowning by thousands, while others were starving. Business or even the chance of doing any, has ceased. The people have gone to look after their families.

The ship Chilo called in at Kaju-chu and found it in the hands of the rebels.

Some thirteen men, supposed to be spies, were caught at Foo-shan and brought to Chefoo. The Mandarin in authority wanted to cut their heads off; this, however, the French Commodore would not allow.

HARES AND HOUNDS.

We have much pleasure in inserting the following letter from the Masters of Hounds in the Settlement; and with no less earnestness than themselves, do we urge the appeal which they make to all genuine lovers of sport. What can be more pleasant, or more healthy on the holiday afternoon of an outgoing Mail day, than the social meeting which takes place on the "Covert side"—a withstanding the mishaps which attend our vigorous sportsmen among the creeks and ditches now and then.

In backing up the request of the "Masters of Hounds," there is only one section of the community whose reluctant assent we have, any fear of obtaining, and that is the Benedicts who brave this enlivening pursuit by "Flood and Field." We have heard it whispered that certain cases of rheumatism and sprained ancles, which have fallen to the lot of these gentlemen, have created fears in the minds, if not the affections of the married ladies, that might interfere with that domestic felicity, we bachelors hope to enjoy in wedded life—should our lot be so fortunate. In this there is much truth, but on the other hand it is well known, that nothing tends more to the maintenance of an even temper on his part, and a happy hearth for both, than a husband with "good digestion waiting upon appetite," after a run with the beagles.

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA HERALD.

SIR.—Like the Belgravian Mothers, we are in dire distress at the melancholy prospects, which, in an inconsiderate age, impend over the Ladies of our Packs; and we dread a sad want of occupation for the vocal powers of our respective daughters (whose names, which we spare you from repeating, are no less lovely and melodious than their voices), unless—thanks to the persuasive influence of your advocacy—we can succeed in softening the hearts of the shooting section of our brother sportsmen, to whose consideration we now appeal.

We would ask, therefore, of our brethren of the gun that in the friendly spirit of "Give and take," which characterises all British, aye, and all civilised sportsmen, and still more in that precious spirit of self denial which a correspondent of your local contemporary so generously attributes to his models of all human virtues, the rebels, they should spare the "gurnard jelly" within a radius of four or five miles from the Settlement—say, from the Pagoda across to Sik-a-wei, the Bubbling Well, and the Soochow Creek beyond Emmu's villa, and on the Hong-kew side, from the end of the first Reach to the woodlands—and allow poor "Puss" the preferable chance of a bird-scenting country to the inevitable calamity of an unerring aim.

We are always glad, Sir, to give a hearty welcome at the covert side, to all and everyone who still can fair and give our little beauties room to hunt. From the nature of our sport we are forced to restrict our "Meets" to a narrow circle round the Settlement, and cannot avail ourselves of the services of a fish-haut, which, with a fair tide, would soon take us beyond the reach of an ordinary walk. Both the carriage of the hounds and the convenience of our field prevents this, and you know, Sir, what a sore heart and weary limbs a blank day brings with it. We therefore make an appeal on behalf of the Hare; and, as some return, we promise to give a good account with our breech-loaders, which accompany us for the purpose, of the not inconsiderable quantity of civet cats, badgers, racoon dogs, stoats, and weasels, which infest the country to the great danger and destruction of all game.

If our appeal is generously acceded to it will not be without the grateful acknowledgements of

Your obedient Servants,
THE MASTERS OF HOUNDS.

Shanghai, October 11th, 1861.

P.S.—A propos of vermin, we do not see why some common fund should not exist in this place from which judiciously distributed in sums not large enough to induce importation from a distance—the deserving slayers of these enemies of our sport should be rewarded, as is done on the estates of gentlemen at home. We throw this out as a suggestion to the owners of pointers, and shall be happy to add our mites if they adopt it.—M.H.

MINUTES OF MEETING HELD AT THE LIBRARY.

Shanghai, October 9th, 1861.

Present—Rev. Dr. Bridgman, Rev. John Hobson, Messrs. S. Rawson, W. G. Howell, J. H. Gwether, T. F. Bannore, A. A. Hayes, &c., &c.

Business Discussed.—The proposed removal of the Library.

Proposed by W. G. HOWELL, Esq., seconded by S. RAWSON, Esq.—"That the question of the removal of the Library be referred to the Committee, in respect of the proposals which it may find itself in a position to make either to the Proprietors of the Masonic Lodge or the Committee of the Club, and the answers it may receive from those bodies." Carried.

Proposed by A. A. HAYES, Esq., seconded by J. H. GWETHER, Esq.—"That the Committee be empowered to obtain accommodation for the Library for a year, or such time as may be necessary." Carried.

The management of the details of the Library were canvassed and a better system with regard to it strongly urged before the Committee.

At a Committee Meeting held immediately after the general one above, Mr. S. Rawson was called upon to fill up the vacancy existing on the Committee, by the departure of Mr. R. Denee from the port.

Letter received from Messrs. Geo. Thorburn & Co., raising the rent of the premises from January next to Tls. 800 per annum.

Letter from Jas. Whittall, Esq., stating that no arrangement could be made with regard to having the Library in the new Club, until the building was completed.

STEAM-BOAT ANCHORAGE IN THE RIVER.

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA HERALD.

SIR.—While fully concurring with your remark concerning the desirability of possessing a Harbour-Master for this port, I have a suggestion to make which I venture to think would be a benefit to this community.

I would suggest that a certain space on this river (say, opposite the Custom House, or any central position) be kept clear of shipping altogether, and appropriated solely for the use of the Mail steamers.

It has often been a matter of great annoyance both to shippers of silk and consignees of treasure, to say nothing of passengers, both inwards and outwards, to find the steamers anchored at such a distance from the Settlement; and I cannot but think that if the steamers could be certain of finding an open berth, they would be very glad to avail themselves of it.

Hoping to see my suggestion some day carried out,

I remain,
Your obedient servant,
UNUS.

THE WEATHER

SEPTEMBER.—This month introduced itself as if it would say,

"You ought to remember,
The first of September!"

for it blew a strong gale from the East, with rain. This was attended by the usual results, at this season of the year, viz: inconveniently full tides, which caused, when at their height, the south end of the Bund to be partially submerged. Some of the streets were flooded also, but not so much as to compel us to go from Hong to Hong in our gondola.

This boisterous beginning was followed by a very hot day and night on the 4th, after which, to the great joy of the suffering residents, the thermometer fell, on a sudden, to 74° max. by day and 65° min. by night, and continued low to the end of the month. We are not well versed in the mysteries of paddy fields, nor in the economy of Chinese agriculture; but we suspect that the præcial portion of the population were greatly rejoiced in the humid supply, which, to the Metropolitans, merely resulted in mud. This month, having come in like a lion, went out like a lamb. We had partial wet weather, but for the most part, it rained only "fatness upon the earth."

The range was 66° to 89° by day, mean 76°; and 57° to 79° by night, mean 78° Fahr: This was a very present relief in our time of trouble, for the two preceding months ranged to 92° and 96° by day, the mean having been 90 by day in each month. There were 19 rainy days out of the 30 The influence of the typhoon, which swept the China coast and that of Japan, was sensibly felt here on the 6th, when it blew a hard gale from N. and N.W., which caused the destruction of several Chinese junks.

THE LATE GALES.

To the Editor of the
DAILY SHIPPING & COMMERCIAL NEWS.

SIR,—I have been in hopes to collect sufficient observations concerning the typhoons of 31st August and 7th Sept. to render to seamen and students, the service of pointing out the true route, extent and character of those remarkable storms. But the requisite reports being unobtainable here, I am obliged to content myself with sending you the accompanying memorandum furnished by Capt Chr. Staats of the British Barque Teresa, together with one respecting the course of the winds and Barometer here.

If you will publish these, and call attention to the subject, you may induce some of the numerous intelligent nautical men in your vicinity to undertake an investigation of two storms, which seem to have been as grand in their extent; and as disastrous in their effect, as any which have occurred in this quarter for many years.

Yours truly,
W.

Nagasaki, September 30th, 1861.

Abstract from the Private Log of Captain CHR. STAATS of the British Barque "Teresa."

Augt. 27, 1861, left Shanghai, wind E N E. fresh.

Augt. 28, beating down the river, wind E.N.E. strong.

Augt. 29, off Gutzlaff, wind E N E, light—at 6 P.M., wind E.N.E. and freshening

Augt 30, at 8 A.M., North Saddle Island bore S., 8 miles off Wind increasing with a very heavy swell from S.E At noon, South Saddle Island bore S.W., a strong and increasing gale. 3 P.M., under close reefs, very heavy sea from S.E., 11 P.M., lost foretopsail. All night blowing very hard. Bar. not below 29.40.

Augt. 31, at noon, Lat. 29°31' Long. 122°13' still blowing a gale. At 5 P M., moderating; wore ship head to north. Bent new sail and shook out reefs—wind E

Sept. 1, Lat. 31°20' Long. 123°27' Bar. 29.80, wind E. and E.S.E., fresh breeze and fine weather.

Sept 2, noon, Lat. 33°21' Long. 124°80', wind light, Bar 29 80.

Sept 3, noon, Lat. 35°27' Long. 125°18', wind light Bar. 29.80.

Sept 4, noon, Lat. 39°03' Long. 125°20', calm Bar. 29.62.

Sept 5, noon, Lat. 31°52' Long. 126°42', wind light, Bar. 29.80. At 5 P M. wind E N E, increasing, with a heavy swell from E. 7 P.M., set very red, but sky clear. 8 P.M. took in light sails. 10 P M double reefed topsails. Sky overcast wind and sea increasing. Midnight Bar. 29 60 close reefed topsails

Sept. 6, 2 A.M. furled foresail, maintopmast staysail. 4 A.M., Bar. 29.40 wind and sea increasing; 7 A.M., Bar. 29.40 wore ship to North. Lost spanker and foretopmast staysail. Confident that Typhoon was approaching, kept the ship to N.N.W. to get away from it.

Sept. 6, noon, Lat. 31°18', Long. 126°30' by log. Bar. rising 29.44, 5 P.M., Bar. 29.48, lost foretopmast and have to on afteryard tacks, wind E by S very strong, high sea from E.S.E; 8 P.M., Bar. 29.48, ; midnight, Bar. 29 46.

Sept. 7, 4 A.M., Bar. 29 45, wind E.S.E.; 8 A.M., Bar. 29 42, wind S.E furious.

Sept. 7, noon. Lat 32°21'; Long. 126°57' by log, Bar. 29.30, wind increasing; 1 P.M., Bars 29.18; 2 do., 29.04, wind most violent; 4 do., 28.98; 5 do., 28.80—ship almost on her beam, ends, saw by the green water that we were near land (Quelpart) and must try to get the ship's head to S., got ship before the wind, when mainsail blew into ribbons, shipped a very heavy sea over port quarter, ship on port tack under bare poles. 8 P.M., Bar. 28.80, ship's hull hardly to seen; 10 P.M., do. 28 75, I had hope no longer if this violence continued many minutes; 10.55 P.M., dead calm, ship rolling tremendously; 11.00 P.M., rising a little, wind chopping round E., N.E., N. Got the foresail set (the only sail left on the yards) and so kept ship's head to the sea; midnight, Bar. 28.90, strong gale from N.N.W. veering to W.

Sept. 8, 1 A.M., Bar. 28.95; 2 A.M., do. 29.00, wind and sea abating

Sept. 8, 4 A.M., Bar. 29 20. 6 A.M., Bar. 29 30, saw Quelpart bearing North, distance 6 miles, wind and sea decreasing.

Sept. 8, noon, Lat 32°38', Long. 127°23', Bar. 29 38, 8 P.M., off Gotto, and at 8 A.M., on Sept. 9, arrived at Nagasaki.

I am of opinion that this must have been a Typhoon travelling from S.W. to N.E., and not from S.E to N.W, as is generally the case in the China The centre of it must have passed close to the Teresa.

(Signed) CHR. STAATS.
Master Barque "Teresa."

October 11.—In continuation of what appeared in our issue of yesterday upon the above subject, we this day insert the second portion of the communication from our correspondent "W." We also take this opportunity of requesting the commanders of vessels, or others who have been at sea or on land within the influence of the typhoons herein mentioned, to send us extracts of their logs, especially if they have noted at the time any barometrical and other data, useful to mariners or scientific men. The following meteorological table will be a good guide for those who have the instruments necessary for the purpose. It was kept by a Dutch savan, resident at Nagasaki, Dr. J. L. C. Pompe van Meerdervoort. We understand that he is a gentleman of high scientific attainments, and can be relied upon for the accuracy of his observations:—

HYDROGRAPHIC NOTICE.

To the Editor of the
NORTH-CHINA HERALD.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to request you will have the kindness to give publicity to the enclosed notice. Until surveyed the neighborhood of this shoal should be approached with extreme caution—much better avoided altogether. By your kindly passing this letter and notice on to your contemporaries in China and India, you will oblige,

Your's Obediently,
JOHN WARD.

H.M.S. Actæ at KANAGAWA,

Hydrographic Notice.
[No 9]
INDIAN OCEAN.

GLENDINNING SHOAL.

Bearings are Magnetic. Variation 0° 15' West in 1861.

Captain Glendinning, of the barque Queen Mab, of Liverpool, reports that on his passage from Singapore to the Cape of Good Hope, on the 20th Oct. last, in lat. 9.58 S., long. 97 50 E., he came upon a dangerous shoal not marked in any of the charts, and lying in the direct track of vessels coming from the Strait of Sunda on their homeward voyage.

Captain Glendinning states that at 9 P.M. of the above date he observed the water all around the ship much discolored, in appearance milky white; that he immediately hove the ship in the wind, had a cast of the lead in and got 7 fathoms, but the next cast (having run about 2 miles W.S.W.) had no bottom with the hand lead. The water continuing discoloured, at 11 o'clock, having run 10 miles further to W.S.W., hove the ship to, and sounded with the deep sea lead in 35 fathoms, hard ground.

CAUTION.—This shoal lies about 130 miles N.N.E., of the Keeling or Cocos Isles and directly in the track of ships on the homeward voyage from China and Singapore by the Strait of Sunda.

As it is most desirable to verify the cast of 7 fathoms and to ascertain how far the bank extends, any Captain passing this neighbourhood is requested to get a few deep sea casts of the lead, and, if time and circumstances will permit, to endeavour to trace the possible connexion of the bank with the Cocos Isles.

Hydrographic Office, Admiralty, London,

This notice affects the following Admiralty charts on which this danger has been inserted:—Indian Ocean, General Chart, No. 2,483, and Indian Ocean, eastern part, No. 2486.
